As per usual, I had a positive experience working on this assignment. I liked how we combined multiple languages to create a cohesive site, and I enjoyed the challenge of figuring out how to put everything together. I am still learning PHP, but this assignment taught me a few new things and this course thus far has actually helped me to build a good amount of my CSC400 project site. I appreciate being able to use knowledge from one class in another class and vice versa.

My teammates have been helpful as usual. We still chat and help each other regularly. They are always willing to answer questions I have, and just like the previous assignments, they helped me to create a finished product for this assignment as well.
